SUMMER 1985

Art Collection on Loan

"Art feeds hunger in the hearts of men," proclaims Dr. Bob Jones, who for many years has strived to make Bob Jones University a school of high academic standards, strong Bible training, and culture.

This past year a portion of the Bob Jones University Collection of Sacred Art went on loan to the Colnaghi Gallery of Art in Manhattan and the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh. Though several paintings from the University's collection have gone to most states in the nation and several foreign countries, the exhibition in North Carolina was the first time that such an extensive portion of the University collection, one of the finest collections in the United States, was ever seen outside of the Bob Jones University museum. The paintings (circa 1590-1750) displayed in the exhibits depict scenes from the Old and New Testaments. Included were exquisite works from Italy, Flanders, Holland, France, and Spain.

Mr. Keith Christiansen, associate curator of Italian paintings at New York's Metropolitan Museum, states, "No question, Bob Jones has the best Baroque art around." The University collection, which opened to the public in 1951 with 25 paintings, now includes works of Rembrandt, Lombard, Guido Reni, Giordano, and many others. "When it comes to Baroque paintings, Dutch, Spanish, and Italian, dating from the period 1590-1750, there really is no contest. Bob Jones wins hands down," said Paul Richard of the Washington Post.

The University presently owns well over 400 Old Masters paintings from which 44 were selected for the loan exhibitions. The collection is considered by the University to be a part of the educational and cultural development of the students in the same way that the library is. The paintings are valuable resource material for the understanding of history and art.

The Bob Jones University Gallery of Sacred Art and Bible Lands Museum is open to the public Tuesday through Sunday 2-5 p.m., except December 20-25, New Year's Day, and July 4. There is no charge for admission, and guided tours are available November through April by calling as far in advance as possible.

Three Faculty/Staff Members Receive Doctorates

Three Bob Jones University faculty and staff members received doctor's degrees this year.

Dr. Ward Andersen, a current Bible faculty member, received his Ph.D. in New Testament interpretation from the University. He received his master of arts degree in Bible in 1968 and has been taking courses since that time, selecting courses he felt would be an asset to his ministry. He has taught the Gospel and Epistles of John, New Testament Prophecy, Galatians and Thessalonians, Bible Geography, and Christ in the Old Testament.

Mrs. Ron Shields received a Ph.D. in speech communication from Louisiana State University after her leave of absence to study in residence in Louisiana. Her dissertation was a biography of Sarah Lowery, a Southern speech teacher who wrote an internationally accepted interpretation textbook. Dr. Shield's dissertation discusses the contributions that Sarah Lowery made to the speech field. As a member of the University speech faculty, Dr. Shields has taught Modern Rhetoric, Oral Communications, Classical Rhetoric, Fundamentals of Speech, as well as private lessons.

Dr. Fred Creason received a Ph.D. in Old Testament interpretation from Bob Jones University where he writes Bible curriculum for the University Press. Dr. Creason's dissertation was a Biblical theology of Judges, showing Jehovah's preservation of Israel in spite of her faithlessness. He received his bachelor's degree in Bible in 1978 and a master's degree in Bible in 1980. This fall he will be coordinating a revision of the secondary Bible curriculum at the Press.

New Doctorate to Be Offered

Beginning with the 1985-1986 school year, Bob Jones University will be offering a new doctorate in the School of Religion. The Doctor of Ministry degree is to equip those actively involved in a pastoral ministry by challenging them to a high level of excellence in the ministry. This program seeks to develop expertise in both theory and practice. It will enable the person in the ministry to strengthen his abilities and to correct deficiencies noted from his experience in the ministry.

Courses will be taught not only by resident graduate faculty of Bob Jones University, but also by visiting faculty who have gained wide respect for their effectiveness in pastoral ministries. Candidates for the Doctor of Ministry degree must hold a Master of Divinity degree or an equivalent seminary degree. For more information, write to the Director of Admissions.

Caribbean Cruise for Christians

This summer Bob Jones University took an innovative step in Christian vacationing. From August 10 through 17, the University sponsored a Caribbean Cruise for Christians on the luxurious Cunard Countess.

Participants toured eight enchanting Caribbean islands during the seven unforgettable days and nights of the cruise. The starting point of this Caribbean adventure was San Juan, Puerto Rico.

In addition to the magnificent scenery offered by the Caribbean, participants also benefited from the spiritually uplifting concerts, seminars, and messages offered by Christians from various fields of service.

The cruise was an unforgettable experience for all who participated. There was the breathtaking beauty of the Caribbean, fabulous meals to please even the most demanding of connoisseurs, a variety of activities from which to choose, and uplifting Christian fellowship which gave this cruise a unique touch that most other cruises cannot offer.

Unusual Films—A Show Window

Unusual Films, under the direction of Dr. Katherine Stenholm, uses the medium of motion pictures to spread the Gospel and to promote the University's Christian testimony around the world. Since its inception in 1950, Unusual Films, which is the production name of the division of cinema in the School of Fine Arts at the University, has been recognized by leading authorities in the field as one of the top cinema schools in the world.

Last year's project was the production of a new multi-image presentation, A Show Window, a thirty-minute representation of life on the BJU campus. It utilizes 21 slide projectors, four motion picture projectors, a multiplex screen, polyphonic sound, and numerous special effects which all blend together to make this a uniquely fascinating presentation. "Our job is to give the audience an honest, documentary look at Bob Jones University," states Dr. Stenholm. "We want to show the heartbeat of the campus—the spiritual aspect. And it's not always an easy thing to capture."

The kernel thought of A Show Window came from an article written by Dr. Bob Jones III for FAITH for the Family in which he commented that BJU is "a show window of God's grace." This concept was originated by his grandfather who often referred to Bob Jones University as "show window material for Jesus Christ." As soon as the theme had been settled on, Unusual Films photographers, including many students in the division of cinema, began photographing everywhere on campus. Approximately 40,000 slides were taken during the course of production. Photographers used a World War II surplus torpedo camera which produces a picture more than seven inches wide that can be broken down later for production.

The technical programming of A Show Window was the responsibility of associate producer Tim Rogers. As he states, "The system controls the curtain, house lights, and all the environmental effects, as well as twenty-one slide projectors and four movie projectors—automatically. Coordinating these multiple functions was made possible by the computer system we used."

A Show Window is shown daily in the Grace Levinson Chapel of the Student Center at Bob Jones University. Special showings for groups may be arranged by contacting the University's Information Desk.

Summer Activities

The hustle and bustle on Bob Jones University campus doesn't end with Commencement. All through the summer months, the University has a flurry of activities. In addition to summer school, there are sport camps, computer science camps, music camps, the Peace-Full Summer Vacation, Good Times for the Golden Years, the missionary linguistics program, and the Christian School Management Seminar. To all these, the University has added three new programs as well.

A brand new camp offered this summer was the Horsemanship Camp for junior high and high school men and women. Good horsemanship skills such as tack, training and breaking, grooming, and the care and feeding of horses were taught to the campers, who worked with the horses at the University farm. These camps were conducted on June 17-21, June 24-28, and July 1-5.

The University also offered a seminar for Christian school teachers. New Beginnings was a one-week seminar that began Monday, July 29, and ended with a noon banquet on Friday, August 2. The seminar offered a multitude of topics from which participants could choose. The purpose of the seminar was to help teachers in Christian schools become as well equipped for their ministry as possible.

The High School Yearbook Workshop for student editors and advisors was offered August 13-16. This seminar taught advisors how they can make their school yearbook—which is likely the most important and costly promotion of their school—something the school can be proud to present. The school yearbook promotes the school to prospective students, is an effective tool for witnessing to family, friends, and neighbors, and serves as a constant reminder of the school. Thus it is vital that the Christian school's yearbook be dynamic and cost-efficient. This seminar was packed with helpful hints on how to make a school's yearbook all that it should be.

Each summer Bob Jones University will be offering many special summer activities for Christians with an interest in making the most of their time and talents. For more information about any of these activities, please write us or call (803) 242-5100, ext. 3120.

University Purchases Diesel Generators

Bob Jones University recently purchased three diesel generators from an old copper mine in Arizona. The generators are presently inoperative, but will be rebuilt to generate up to 4.5 megawatts (4500 kilowatts) of power. The steam heat produced by the operation of the generators will be recaptured to heat two or three buildings in the winter. This procedure can also be used to cool the buildings in the summer.

The bulk of the reconstruction work, which should take 12-15 months, will be done by the diesel and automechanic staff of the University's School of Applied Studies. Once the generators are completely operational, they will be able to produce up to 50 percent of the University's electrical needs, saving the University approximately $300,000 a year.

This generator project is only one example of the numerous creative ways that the University has streamlined costs in an effort to keep students' tuition payments low.

The Minutemen Evangelistic Team

Bob Jones University is now directing an exciting new outreach for unsaved youth under the leadership of Jim and Rhonda VanGelderens, Mike Ascher, and Jeff Dayhoff. Because of the dedicated Christian workers on its staff, the Minutemen Evangelistic Team has seen hundreds of young people accept Christ as Saviour.

The Minutemen Evangelistic Team derives the name from its unusual theme—"The War"—and conducts a series of youth meetings, special activities, and games for hosting churches. Special competitive games pit the "Army," under the leadership of General Mort R. Shell, against the "Navy," commanded by Admiral Perry Scope. Young men and women participate in such war games as "Swamp Stomp" (a tug-of-war over a thigh-deep mudpit), "Bomber Ball" (basketball) or volleyball using a four-foot ball), and many others. If time permits—and if there are any survivors—there are humorous skits or other more conventional games. At the conclusion of each evening's games, there are free refreshments, followed by a message from God's Word.

The Minutemen Evangelistic Team started as a neighborhood outreach but has steadily grown into a major ministry used in scores of churches across the United States. During the last several years the team has been used of God to reach thousands of America's young people through an effective combination of fun, food, and preaching.

For further information about how to have the Minutemen Evangelistic Team start a "War" in your area, please contact Mike Fowler at Bob Jones University, or call (803) 242-5100, ext. 3123.

Finances a Problem?

To alleviate the high cost of a college education, Bob Jones University helps its students obtain financial help in many different ways.

The primary source of aid for students who have financial need is the Work Scholarship Program. Students may apply for aid in amounts of $70 to $210 per month. This amount is worked off by the student through one of the 1600 jobs available on campus and credited toward the monthly cost.

The University also has a $1000 interest-free loan program available for students who are already working and doing what they can to pay their own way. The loan approval is contingent upon the student's having a minimum work scholarship of $150 per month. First priority is given to dependents of unemployed parents and children of widows.

An aid to second-generation students is the Alumni Children Tuition Assistance Grant. The amount of this non-repayable grant is $500 for dormitory students and $250 for day students. Eligible students may apply through the Alumni Association.

There are also special loans available for students currently enrolled and whose accounts are not up to date by the time of final examinations. The first of these loans is the Freedom Loan Fund which can provide an additional $300 per semester for dormitory students and $150 for day students. The Founder's Loan Fund was set up by alumni to help their own children. For special students who find themselves in emergency situations, a special loan fund will provide $300 per semester on a short-term loan basis to be paid back with interest before September 1 of the following school year.

A limited number of scholarships are offered by private foundations and businesses that have a particular interest in BJU students.

Beginning this year the University will offer a ten-payment plan and a twelve-payment plan. A student will make equal monthly payments in order to pay the annual costs of $4,896 for room, board, and tuition. Considerably lower monthly payments are possible with the twelve-payment plan.

A series of Friendship Banquets will be held in many cities around America for the purpose of acquainting University friends with current events at the University and putting them in touch with the financial needs of hard-working, praying young people who are from broken homes, who are orphans, whose parents are out of work, whose parents are in full-time Christian service, etc., and who are doing all they can to meet their own expenses and yet come up short due to emergency situations.

University Place

For those Christians who are age 62 or over, Bob Jones University has an exciting opportunity in the making. The University is now constructing University Place, a full-service retirement community located near a beautifully wooded area directly across from the front entrance to the campus. These comfortable, attractive apartments will be connected to the main part of campus by a private tunnel which will run beneath Wade Hampton Boulevard.

University Place is an answer to the prayers of many alumni and friends who have expressed an intense interest in returning to the Greenville area to be close to the school when they retire. "Retiring" is perhaps a misnomer, because University Place will afford its occupants an opportunity to live a vibrant, active life while building Christ-centered friendships.

University Place is much more affordable than most retirement centers. Many centers charge entrance fees of $80,000-$100,000 or more and monthly service fees of $800-$900 for one person. The entrance fees for one-bedroom units at University Place will begin at only $39,500; and fees for two-bedroom units will begin at only $58,500. There will also be four extremely spacious top floor penthouse units at entrance fees based on their proportional sizes.

The monthly service fee for one person in a one-bedroom unit will be only $390. This price includes one meal each day in the faculty area of the University Dining Common; all maintenance; lawn and grounds care; 24-hour security; all utilities with the exception of telephone charges; transportation across campus for meals; scheduled local transportation for shopping; once-monthly thorough apartment cleaning; all-electric kitchen; prescription delivery service; free admission to many University programs, concerts, lectures, films, sporting events, and others; use of indoor swimming pool, gymnasium, library, and a wide variety of other University facilities.

Other services which will be offered upon request for a small charge include additional meals; assisted living services when needed and outpatient therapies; additional housecleaning services; flat laundry and towel service; daily newspaper delivery to apartment; cable television; and reduced tuition for all University courses taken on a non-credit basis.

University Place will open in the summer of 1986 and will offer residents varied and enriching spiritual, cultural, educational, and recreational opportunities. Residents may participate in as many or as few of the activities as they choose.

Unlike many retirement communities, University Place will offer two practical and affordable entrance fee plans, one of which allows for a full entrance fee refund, regardless of the number of years one may have lived there.

When measured against location, services, prices, and Christ-centered activities offered, there is no other retirement center in America quite like University Place.
